

One of my favourite moments from the quarter was the Stage Combat workshop my friend put on for us over Zoom. She is a theatre artist living in New York City, and the kids absolutely loved it. It is a unique part of theatre that is often not thought about, with few expert knowledge holders. She actually trained with the master who choreographed the famous Anakin vs. Luke battle in Star Wars: Episode III, and the students got to learn from her!

I also loved this workshop for my learners because it emphasizes SAFETY in the theatre, and builds community in a very fun way.
